commonly known, lived in a small cabin next to the Hagan Trail. Since this was the main road over which goods and supplies came into Harlan County, and the trip from Hagan, Virginia, took two days, the wagon traffic provided Elijah and Mandy an ample opportunity to profit from their location. Mandy provided the overnight travelers, many of who stayed overnight with the couple and other area residents, with meals, cakes, and pies. She was well known as a fine pioneer Harlan County cook.

Wash's Wash operated his coal mines well into the early 1990's and sold most of his land to the Harlan Fuel Company. He also sold land to the Black Eagle Coal Company and sold the area on the north side of his property to the Kentenia Corporation. He received around $30.00 per acre for the prime coal land. He purchased all 200 acres of prime coal land for only $10.00. When he sold it, he made a profit of $6,000.00 which would appear to be a tremendous profit. However, the land would yield countless millions in later years, and the coal reserves are still producing countless tons of quality coal to this day.

One of Elijah's sons was D. E. Hensley, who was one of Harlan County's first practicing veterinarians. He was self-taught in veterinary medicine and practiced for many years in Harlan County. He held a special license to practice veterinary medicine issued by the State of Kentucky even though he never attended veterinary school. I knew Mr. Hensley well and recall as a young man how he saved my pet groundhog's foot after she was injured in an accident. His son, D. E. Hensley, Jr., traced his family history back to the original George Washington Hensley, his great grandfather, and provided the information which is the basis for this article.

Company scrip was not issued by George Washington Hensley, but the property he sold to Harlan Fuel Company made it possible for its first owner, Elzo Guthrie, to organize Harlan County's longest operating coal mining company, Harlan Fuel Company, Incorporated. This company issued company scrip from 1919 to 1958, and the land first mined by Wash's Wash is still producing coal for the present owner, Great Western Coal Company. The legacy of Harlan County coal, started so long ago, continues to grow on Catrons Creek, Harlan County, Kentucky.

WASHINGTON HENSLEY MINE

The first coal mine to operate at Catrons Creek in Harlan County, Kentucky.

By: W. C. Stump

The information contained in the following article was made available to me through the research of D. E. Hensley, Jr., Culston, Ky., heir of George Washington Hensley, early Harlan County Ky., pioneer.

The first recorded coal mine to operate at Catrons Creek, and one of the first coal mines to operate in Harlan County, Ky., was located in the area of Harlan County near the area presently known as Bardo, Ky. It was the year 1896 when George Washington Hensley possibly became Harlan County's first coal operator. He was born in North Carolina around 1838. He was given the same name as his father, George Washington Hensley. His mother was Ruth Edwards Hensley. He was nicknamed Wash's Wash or Wash Wash instead of the typical Junior or George Washinton Hensley II. He came to Harlan County, Ky., from Yancey County, North Carolina with his father and mother in the latter half of the 1800's. He married his cousin, Mary Emaline Hensley, daughter of Enos "Bear" and Caroline Hensley of North Carolina. He is not to be confused with another George Washington Hensley who was born in 1880 in Harlan County to his wife's father, Enos Hensley, and her stepmother, Alice Fee Hensley, who was the daughter of Abner and Icy Farmer Fee.

Abner Fee also owned considerable acreage with rich coal reserves adjacent to Wash's Wash Hensley's land near Liggett, Ky. Abner also owned land near the Martins Fork area of the county. The Liggett Mining company purchased part of the land and the mineral rights to the rest of his land.

Wash's Wash bought 200 acres of land from Noble Smith and H. Skidmore in 1859 at 5 cents per acre. According to the old deeds describing the land, it was located "on the waters of Catrons Creek." In those early days, 5 cents per acre was a bargain even for mountain land.

Wash's Wash mined coal into the early 1900's from his mine. He sold coal throughout the area, and an employee, Sam Scott, hauled the coal in a horse-drawn wagon from Catrons Creek to Mount Pleasant (Harlan) and across the mountain, along the Hagen Trail, to the Martins Fork area of the county. Wash's Wash had a son, Elijah, who was married to Amanda Edwards. Elijah and Mandy, as Amanda was more

In May, 1991, the first use of the Official N. S. C. A. membership badge made its debut at the Nelsonville, Ohio, Scrip Convention. As you know, I have been co-ordinating the production and sale of these special membership badges. Only 100 of these special badges, with a gold-tone logo medallion, have been produced, and as it stands, 55 remain on hand.

I was asked, as many of the officials were, about the badges and the revenue derived from the sale of these badges, and by a few, what do I get out of selling the badges. First, the badges were adopted by the Board of Directors of the Association in 1991 as the official membership badges of the N. S. C. A. Secondly, ALL revenue derived will go into the general fund of the association. Third, and finally, I receive nothing as compensation for co-ordinating this program except the satisfaction of assisting in enhancing the image of our great organization which was obviously done through the use of these badges. The use of the badges at the Nelsonville Convention gave each already distinctive member a special touch of professionalism. The members attending evidently thought so also because all but one, or 99%, purchased and wore the new membership badge.

To order one of these soon-to-be collectors items, please use the order form below. Remember, you are not only purchasing a very attractive and desirable collectors item, but showing your support to your great association.

COLEMAN MINING CO.

Fox Ridge (Cary,) Kentucky

By: W. C. Stump

In 1907, the Coleman Mining Company, Inc. began operating their first coal mining operation, the Fox Ridge Mine, on Straight Creek, in Bell County, Kentucky. The main sales office was located in Louisville, Ky., the local office was located in Pineville, Ky., and the coal was shipped via the Louisville & Nashville Railroad. The officers were Mr. D. Scanlon, President; Mr. George Land, Vice President; Mr. G. T. Rider, Secretary and Treasurer; and Mr. C. R. Coleman, General Manager. The mine foreman was Mr. Walter Harmon.

According to the official report of the Inspector of Mines of Kentucky, which is the basis of information used to write these articles, this early mine was driven on the double entry and room and pillar system. It also had a gradual dip of about three percent from the drift mouth to the center of the mine. the coal was about 36 inches and clear of parting. The roof was considered to be good for the day and was of slate and sandstone. Blasting was done with black powder after a procedure that was not so common for 1910. The coal was undercut by compressed air punch machines, and a fuse was used and very little coal was shot on the solid, if any. No regular shot firer was employed. Also, no limit was put on the amount of powder the miners were allowed to take into the mine. This was probably due to the fact that the mine was generally wet and thus little danger from dust was present. The water was handled by compressed air pumps. At times, this mine had indications of having a small amount of "marsh gas" issuing from the coal, but not enough to give indication when the Davy safety lamp was used to detect gas. The coal was hauled by electric locomotives and the following machines were used: Two Sullivan puncher machines, three Harrison punchers, and two 5-ton electric locomotives. The daily capacity of the mine was about 250 tons.

The mining operation had a problem of insufficient air supply for ventilation of the mine for many years. Reports through 1914 make note of this difficiency.

The company constructed a mining camp, church, and provided electricity to all the tenant houses by 1914. A school and motion picture theatre was nearby. A company doctor took care of the medical needs of the miners and their families. The familiar pictorial company scrip, with the Fox logo, was used by the miners at the modern company store also located in the camp.

The Coleman Mining Company has long since become part of the Bell County, Kentucky, coal mining past. Like the countless other companies that once prospered in the early part of this century, we have the scrip the company used as a reminder of that period in the history of our great nation.

BRIDGEPORT MAIL-FLOOR BID AUCTION, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 5, 1991

Please accept our apologies for the short turnaround time for bidding in this, The Bridgeport Meeting Auction. Walter had several hair pulling days trying to get his electronic stencil maker repaired. This delayed our request for tokens. But thanks to Crawford, Fannie, Dick, Corkey, and Jerry plus a few of my own, we are able to give you a good listing. There are coal, lumber and picture scrip with some good rarity ratings. We have placed Minimum Bids on each lot. They are designed to protect our consignors against big losses. They donot, however, cover all of his costs. So we ask you to bid accordingly. As in the past, bid the maximum you are willing to pay and we will enter your bids in competition with the floor bids. We donot reveal your bids to anyone until after the auction is over. Send your bids to BILL WILLIAMS, 152 KAWGA WAY, LOUDON TN 37774 so as to arrive by Wed Oct 2, 1991. You also may place bids by calling me at 615 458 9427 up to Midnight Eastern Time Wed Oct 2. Good Luck.
